Nomad | Connector | Brand Marketer | Idea Hamster

Urvi Bhandari is passionate about changing the paradigm of how we live, work and play by connecting people, places and projects across the world. She is a transformational leader, connecting four key pillars, through her network and global experience. Corporation (Scale & Market) + Startup (Speed & Innovation) + Capital + Global Thought Leaders = Collaboration of our Expansive Future. This community collaborates and generates innovation that will expand the experiences of people's lives.

One long term project, (20 years) is to build floating cities providing a new life platform for innovators, futurists, global thinkers and nomads.

Urvi is a Partner and Chief Connection Officer of Crush Industries, a media and insights company. Crush Industries is the evolution of People, Places and Ideas! We create insightful media, products, and experiences designed to increase evolutionary potential in businesses and individuals. The flagship asset is Innovation Crush - a podcast interview series with folks that inspire disruptive creativity, growth, and action by creating great innovative ideas in the marketplace! Other assets include customized innovation workshops (Culture Labs and Collision Courses) and in the future - TV series, books and online content.

Urvi is also Chief Nomad of a Consultancy that has global clients, in a variety of industries focusing on branding, connecting and business development. Another focus in this company is building infrastructure and community for the modern day nomad.

In all her previous roles with Fortune 10 companies, she has had a stream of experiences focused on innovation. Her roles at AT&T partnered with executives, industry thought leaders and changed culture inside and outside the company. She has also worked at IBM, The Coca-Cola Company, Jones Apparel Group and McCann Erickson Advertising.

Urvi is an avid endurance athlete completing a half ironman, multiple triathlons, marathons and long distance bike rides. Urvi has lead a very nomadic lifestyle and her current base is Downtown Dallas. Urvi continues to travel across the world to experience and connect life through people and places.
